Can AI help tackle the mental health crisis?

Earlier this year, Health Secretary Matt Hancock announced that the NHS will receive £250 million to build an artificial intelligence laboratory. It will be implemented to help doctors treat diseases including cancer, dementia and heart disease.

Temps de lecture : minute

11 February 2020

Article écrit par Tali Ramsey