Through mental and language barriers: Alexandre Mars' PAUSE podcast

To break the chains that hold you to your failure. Alexandre Mars delivers the keys to let go of the past, to stop worrying about the future and to grasp the opportunities the present offers.

Alexandre Mars overcomes the language barrier and offers his podcast PAUSE in English, thanks to Artificial Intelligence, so that as many people as possible can have access to his incredible guests. And the first personality to play the game is none other than Rugby player Antoine Dupont, of of the French stars at the Olympic Games.

The rise of Artificial Intelligence thus offers a tremendous opportunity to use the latest innovations in this field to share the incredible stories of PAUSE guests well beyond the French-speaking world, by reproducing their voice and tone as faithfully as possible.

If experience and expertise were a podcast

Somewhere in the Broceliande Forest, shines a mysterious light. It's not coming from the feeble moonlight, that the obsidian river can't reflect. It's not coming from a glowworm, as the vast tree shade doesn't allow for sunshine to get through. No, the light comes from beyond reality; on a windy night, when only a violent rain can be heard under the old oaks, then appears a Black Unicorn. Legendary beacon of light, mythical lighthouse, the Black Unicorn's horn, bright like a warm summer dawn, will guide adventurers, explorers, CEOs, founders and marketers through the darkest nights, gifting them with sight so they go down the most successful path.

Started by the Black Unicorn PR co-founders, the Runway podcast aims to bring you deep conversations and unasked questions with marketing, comms, sales, and other growth experts.

Whether you're a startup founder or CEO, marketer, or even building a traditional business, we want this to be a place of learning for you. We bring you in-depth interviews with marketing professionals, agency owners, journalists, sales experts and more to equip you with the tools and knowledge you need to grow your business, manage teams, and make better decisions.

Build and Fix

We started by building tools to tame our environment. Now we need to create tools to save it.

If medicine is the proof of the loving nature of humanity, we are yet to show care toward our loving nature. For hundreds of years, furnaces have been roaring flames, factories have been exhaling toxic fumes and mines have buried mankind. But now, as entrepreneurship is taking a new turn, startups and companies are working to fix our planet, and even do more than current governments.

How We Fix This—a new podcast hosted and narrated by Emmy and Golden Globe awarded actor Alexander Skarsgård—offers some serious solutions to the issues our planet is facing. Co-produced by non-profit impact ecosystem Norrsken and Spotify, the series will spotlight eight pioneering startups that are building tools to combat some of the world's most pressing social and environmental challenges.

Over 8 episodes, How We Fix This will explore a significant global dilemma and highlight the innovative approaches startups are taking to address them. The series not only features the founder's journeys, but also includes insights from leading researchers and experts, including the World Wide Fund for Nature and Stockholm Resilience Centre.

The Gadget Show or The intrinsic desire of mankind

From a very young age, we are drawn by technology. It might be intrinsic to mankind, but we need and want cutting-edge technology as a child or even a toddler. Whether it's for comfort or amusement, kids crave new technology. Playing spies, writing with an invisible ink pen, borrowing siblings' phones to play games; it's within our nature to use and enjoy tech.

For the landmark celebration of its 20th anniversary this year, the UK's most beloved TV tech show, The Gadget Show, is back with a fresh twist. Original presenters Suzi Perry and Jason Bradbury have reunited to launch The Gadget Show Podcast, a fun new series that dives into the latest in tech and gadgets. The duo guide listeners through hands-on reviews, tech trends, and engaging interviews with special guests. It's The Gadget Show 2.0, and it's time to put the band back together!

The Gadget Show Podcast kicked off the first episode with Suzi and Jason getting their hands on the highly anticipated Apple Vision Pro, delivering an in-depth review of 2024's hottest gadget. They were joined by Pete Jenkinson, the world's only Toyologist, to discuss the latest trends in the toy industry and the impact of technology on toys.
